Equal parts performance and protest, an attitude of art following action defines subMedia's productions. From the regularly released and highly produced video blog 'It's the End of the World as We Know It' to the collaborative documentary 'Ground Noise and Static', their work injects a radical analysis into the culture in a most entertaining way.

-Not An Alternative

subMedia sets the bar for what independent and D.I.Y. media should be exposing viewers to contemporary struggles and political culture, with a radical and anti-colonial perspective that is absent from all other news. And inspiring what the world needs more of -Direct Action.

SHOWDOWN AT HIGHWAY 134

2013, 5 MINUTES

With some of the only video from behind police lines, subMedia.tv witnessed the brutal raid by the Royal Colonial Mounted Police on the Mi'kmaq blockade of fracking equipment. But the fierce response of the community in defense of the warriors was also captured on camera. We bring you the real story about what really went down on Highway 134, the story that the corporate media doesn't want you to see.

STEAL SOMETHING FROM WORK DAY

2010, 2.5 MINUTES

Steal something from work! Break down the divisions that separate you from your co-workers. Work together to maximize your under-the-table profit-sharing; make sure all of you are safe and getting what you need. Don't let the boss pit you against each other in the end, that only makes all of you more vulnerable. Build up enough trust that you can graduate from taking things from work to taking control of your workplace itself!

!VIEQUES RESISTE!

2013, 5 MINUTES

Vieques is a small Caribbean island that boasts some of the most beautiful beaches in the world. It is home to generations of men and women, who survive from the bounty of the ocean and the land. It is also the stomping ground to thousands of feral horses. Vieques is a municipality of what is now known as Puerto Rico, a colony of the United States of America.

In the 1940's the US Navy forcibly evicted the people of Vieques out of the east and west sides of the island, installed naval bases, and used its pristine beaches as heavy weaponry target ranges.

After 50 plus years of bombings, abusive behaviors by US servicemen, and general disinterest by the Puerto Rican government, the people Vieques had enough. They launched a campaign of civil disobedience and sabotage that was joined by thousands of international sympathizers, with the departure of the navy as the main objective.

On May first 2003, As US President George W Bush boasted of a victory over Iraq aboard a Navy aircraft carrier, the same Navy was quietly closing its doors on Vieques. In 2013, the people of Vieques celebrated the tenth anniversary of this victory.

The PTP would bring natural gas obtained through fracking to the Pacific Ocean and would cross through the Unist'ot'en's traditional territory. 2012's camp consisted of over 150 people who came from as far east as Montreal and as far south as Florida.

KAHSATSTENHSERA: INDIGENOUS RESISTANCE TO TAR SANDS PIPELINES

2013, 10 MINUTES

The "Line 9" and "Energy East" pipelines threaten to bring tar sands "crude" from Alberta for export through ports in the Atlantic. These pipelines will traverse through many Indigenous communities and natural areas, threatening not only the health of the land but the sovereignty of these territories and their peoples. We teamed up with Indigenous organizer Amanda Lickers to produce KAHSATSTENHSERA. The video focuses on Indigenous resistance and seeks to build capacity in Indigenous and non-Indigenous communities by providing an educational and accessible resource to build awareness across communities. Featuring stories and perspectives from land defenders in Athabasca Chipewyan, Six Nations of the Grand River, Kanenstake, and Elspogtog First Nations, this video not only educates the general public, but showcases Indigenous resistance and provides an anti-colonial lens for understanding environmental destruction.
